

Eligible Expenses for FSA/HRA

Medical expenses are the costs of diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment, or prevention of disease, and the costs for treatments affecting any part or function of the body. They don't include expenses that are merely beneficial to general health, such as vitamins or a vacation.

Below is a partial list of permissible health and work-related dependent care expenses reimbursable through an FSA plan that are either incurred by you, your spouse, or qualified dependents. For a more detailed list, go to your Flex Dashboard on HCOOnline and click on FSAstore.com.

You can be reimbursed for the cost of medical care from any of these types of practitioners:
